

Bike with no training Wheels – for kids!

Check out the Strider PREbike from Baby Grins online store.

When I sent out an email to all my great family friendly stores, looking for cool summer activities or toys, Marcie was the first to respond. She said she had the coolest bike for kids as young as one. She said, "If they can walk they can start to learn how to ride a bike with the Strider PREbike.

Okay I was a bit skeptical... Are you? We went over to see her and my son was in love... When he saw this bike his first words "WOW, how do you peddle?" Marcie had him get on and he just started walking around with the bike. We picked out an orange bike, they come in six colors and took it home and within 3 hours of riding the bike – all in little chunks of time-, he was starting to get his balance and lift his legs. Marcie was right it is very cool. He asked right away if we could take the training wheels off his other bike. "Not yet son" I said. My 3 yr old is at a completely different stage of learning, but she loves it and walks a bit more. She is learning to balance in the early stages. It's great.

So yes, this is a great bike and the bottom line... The Strider PREbike running bike gives your toddler a safer and smarter bike riding experience! Moreover, you don't have to push...

Trikes and bikes with training wheels place too much focus on learning to pedal...

Bike riding becomes a breeze when you teach your child balance and coordination before pedaling. The Strider PREbike takes pedaling out of the mix so that kids can concentrate solely on learning balance, which takes more practice. After they learn to balance, they can learn to pedal. It's the next skill that kids can easily learn within a few short minutes once they have the balance and coordination mastered!

If your child can walk... your child can ride a Strider PREbike running bike

Even tiny children before the age of 2 are drawn to the Strider PREbike. At first, kids grab the handlebars, straddle the bike and walk without ever sitting down on the seat. And they're completely stable: two wheels, front and back. Feet firmly on the ground. Hands bracing the handle bars.

The next step... Kids quickly learn to set down, push with their feet and zip right along as they balance on two wheels. Unlike other bikes that sit in your garage, gathering dust while your child waits to grow into them, the Strider PREbike running bike will get plenty of use from day one!

Here's an added benefit for parents... Your child will become significantly more mobile. The Strider PREbike opens up a whole world for your child to ride on, Take your child's Strider to an outdoor gathering, a nearby park, or anywhere else you walk. With a Strider, there's no more dawdling little one's. Your child will easily keep the pace.

Enjoy the summer.
